A Guide to First Friday

HOW TO BE COOL... AT FIRST FRIDAY

Is it your first First Friday? With these helpful hints, you'll be a First Friday pro in no time.

- ✦ Don't touch the art, and definitely don't steal the art. Most art is available for purchase so that you can touch it whenever you please... from the comfort of your own home.
- ✦ Don't go just for the booze. It's all about the art, man. If you do partake in a light snack or beverage, stay on the lookout for the tip jar!
- ✦ Be aware of your surroundings. Pay attention when in doorways and crowded halls, as those tend to be the worst place to abruptly stop and catch up with your buddy.

It's pretty simple. Just be a good person and enjoy the art!

ART

The Aliens | Parrish Studios

The Aliens, a collection of multimedia artists, can be found nestled inside Parrish Studios. February's showcase will feature the works of three visual artists: Christian Jo Gauthier, Dana Oltman and Andrew Roanhorse. These artists' work takes abstraction and contrast in new directions. Oltman, an Omaha graphic designer, presents a collection of acrylic on canvas. Visiting artist from Kearney, Roanhorse, creates drawing and paintings that show movement and human contrasts, as well as work influenced by his Native American identity. Gauthier is an abstractionist painter who has previously shown work at The Aliens. His introspective work is defined by animal, human, and eclectic shapes. The Aliens host First Friday events every month.

LINCOLN EXPOSED

Feb 7-10

One of Lincoln's biggest music events of the year is here! Lincoln Exposed is a festival-style collection of over 100 Lincoln artists performing live music across five venues. The four-day festival stretches from Wednesday, Feb. 7, through Saturday Feb. 10, culminating on KZUM's 40th anniversary birthday concert Saturday night. Concerts will be held from 6:00 p.m.- 2:00 a.m. nightly at the Zoo Bar, The Bourbon Theater, Duffy's Tavern, 1867 Bar and Bodega's Alley. Lincoln Exposed brings diverse music crossing the spectrum of instrumental, experimental, hard rock, hip hop, folk, funk, and more.

MUSIC

Orion Walsh | Iron Tail

Frame shop and gallery space, Iron Tail, near 25th and Randolph will host folk musician, Orion Walsh, for February's First Friday event. The Lincoln native released his seventh album, "7", on Jan. 7, 2017. The singer-songwriter plays with a classic, heartfelt indie sound that often narrates his travels. After a U.S. and European tour with the album, Walsh's Iron Tail performance will mark the beginning of a period of local shows. You can catch Orion at Lincoln Exposed next week with several spring performances around town.
